

NATIONAL SEMINAR
ON
BETTER AND FAIR ENVIRONMENT FOR WOMEN AT WORK PLACE
(Date of Seminar-20th January 2019)

Women have been the victim of discrimination from ages due to feminine incharacter. They have been the subject of physical abuse, intimidation and threat throughout their life. Although our scriptures do boast of respect towards women but the present reality cannot be overruled with historical rhetoric. Now women are no longer caged within four walls as the educational progress have provided them access to the areas where only men were working. Thus the work place have become a junction of male and female employees and beneficiaries/consumers. But here also the women have been victim of intimidation under the traditional -sadistic –masculinity which has been named as sexual harassment. The power game plays major role and the consequence is horrible. The VISAKHA guidelines by the Supreme Court has been a milestone in the journey to women empowerment which has been replaced by Sexual Harassment Act 2013, a comprehensive legislation, and UGC mandate to enforce this Act in all academic institutions. Despite the fact that the Act is mandatorily enforced in all sectors of work, the women are unsafe. The present #MeToo movement have been digging the earth. Of course contradictory thoughts have given impetuous to discussion on the age old issues.

In this background, The Chanakya National Law University Patna organises a national seminar on this burning issue. It is expected that the participants will strive to find out appropriate solution to this moral/social/legal issue of threat and insecurity from and amongst the known and trust –worthy persons. The seminar aims to discuss not only legal issues rather the psychological and anthropological dimensions of human behaviour also. The struggle for economic independence, educational pursuit and maintenance of the family, have become a challenge for working women at workplace.
