Course Description: -

The course illustrates specific nature of sports and its pertinent jurisprudence. There is no Central or State Legislation that regulates sports in India. The course analyzes legal relationships between athletes, teams, leagues, governing bodies, facilities, media, technology, and fans using contract, antitrust, labor, intellectual property, and tort law. It extensively addresses and deals with a variety of facets ranging from criminal offences like fraud and cheating to civil liability arising from contractual obligations which form an integral part of the subject matter of Sports Law. The topics and chapters are structured not only to illustrate the theoretical aspect of the subject but also enable the learners to understand the practical application of the principles by analyzing the plethora of sports jurisprudence, explaining the interplay between the various laws related to it, identifying the distribution of powers among sports regulatory bodies – both national and international, and providing a comprehensive view of their dispute resolution mechanism.
